

Scott Foresman Reading Street Preschool Reading Curriculum

Our preschool and pre-k classrooms now use the Scott Foresman Reading Street program for our reading curriculum. The Scott Foresman program is a scientifically research based program that supports New York State standards in literacy and also touches on science, mathematics, social studies, art and music. It includes children's books, flip charts, alphabet charts, picture cards, song books, puppets and vocabulary cards. This program supports our philosophy of emergent curriculum and learning through play and allows room for "teachable moments" that are so important when working with young children.

The Corning-Painted Post School District uses the Scott Foresman program in its pre-k through fifth grade classrooms. Our use of this program will help bridge the gap to kindergarten for children and families by providing an opportunity for consistency in their educational continuum. Children who will not enter the Corning-Painted Post School District will also benefit from this tool. This curriculum complements our philosophy which will enable us to use Reading Street to its fullest and will add to the quality we already provide in getting children ready for kindergarten.
